

Vice Fund (VICEX) Commentary
March 2024

The Vice Fund ended the month of March with a return of 3.37%.

Market Review

In March, U.S. equities rose to all-time highs despite the Federal Reserve projecting fewer rate cuts than expected in 2024. The breadth of the rally off the 2022 lows has also expanded to small-cap stocks this month. The S&P 500's recent streak is historic. Since 1940, Q1 returns marked the second consecutive quarter with double-digit gains for the ninth time and the 5-month gain is the 10th highest return in that period.

Q1 earnings season will supply more insight into how much higher rates affect company profits. Analysts are projecting earnings-per-share growth percentages in the double digits for calendar years 2024 and 2025. If these lofty expectations of forward earnings underwhelm, it may result in stock market volatility. We believe earnings misses have punished individual stocks, and a hawkish Fed has restricted borrowing for future growth.

The Vice Fund remains committed to its core belief that certain stocks are undervalued because certain factions of society deem them morally questionable. Our core holdings remain military defense, casino, alcohol, and tobacco stocks because they typically have an inelastic customer base that is unlikely to be swayed by whether the product price rises or falls.

Sincerely yours,

Paul Strehle

IMPORTANT RISK INFORMATION:

Mutual fund investing involves risk; principal loss is possible. The Fund will concentrate its net assets in industries that have significant barriers to entry including the alcoholic beverages, tobacco, gaming and defense/aerospace industries, the Fund may be subject to the risks affecting those industries, including the risk that the securities of companies within those industries will underperform due to adverse economic conditions, regulatory or legislative changes or increased competition affecting those industries, more than would a fund that invests in a wide variety of industries. The Fund invests in foreign securities which involve greater volatility and political, economic and currency risks and differences in accounting methods. The Fund invests in smaller companies, which involve additional risks, such as limited liquidity and greater volatility. Derivatives may involve certain costs and risks such as liquidity, interest rate, market, credit, management and the risk that a position could not be closed when most advantageous. Investing in derivatives could result in losing more than the amount invested. If a security sold short increases in price, the Fund may have to cover its short position at a higher price than the short sale price, resulting in a loss.
